MEMBERSHIP: Available to any person interested in genealogy and local history. Dues are $8.00 for individuals and $10.00 for families. The fiscal year is from July 1 to June 30.

MEETINGS: The Society meets the fourth Sunday of the month except for August and December. Helping sessions are held at 1:00 pm and beginner genealogy classes are also held at 1:00pm. The business and program meeting begins at 2:30 pm. All meetings are open to the public. Regular meetings are held in the Lecture Hall of the Liberal Arts and Science Building, Washtenaw Community College, 4800 E. Huron River Drive, Ann Arbor, Michigan. The June picnic and July cemetery reading are held elsewhere.

QUERIES AND RESEARCH: GSWC invites researchers to submit queries for publication, especially those with reference to Washtenaw County and surrounding localities. Please use standard format and limit your words to about thirty plus your name and address. The Research Committee will investigate queries in local libraries and GSWC files. Further research in the courthouse, newspapers or census will be undertaken for a small contribution. Please include a SASE with your query. Researchers are encouraged to deposit ancestor charts and family group sheets in our Washtenaw genealogical collection.

SOCIETY NEWS AND NOTES

Recent Meetings

Bruce Nelson introduced the speaker at the March 27 meeting, remarking that the English are using computers to put a family tree onto cassettes or magnetic disks, and then to search for information or trace the beginnings of new families, saving much time in the researching of extensive English family histories.

The speaker was Peter Shaldenbrand, former president of the Detroit Genealogical Society and the Farmington Genealogical Society, and a teacher of computer science at Farmington High School. He began by requesting any information on his own family, the Fullertons in Augusta Township of Washtenaw County.

Mr. Shaldenbrand talked first about the equipment, or hardware, to buy. The various systems of Radio Shack, Apple, Vic 20, IBM PC, etc., are more appropriate than others such as Atari which are geared mostly to games. They all use BASIC language (an acronym indicating Beginners All-purpose Symbolic Instruction Code) but programs (software) cannot be used interchangeably in different systems. Hardware consists primarily of a keyboard containing the central processing unit (CPU) and the memory space, which can usually be expanded, expressed as for instance 16 K. An interface is used to connect additional devices such as disk drives, printer, and a modem or telephone connection to outside information sources.

Software refers to programs of information the computer can read. The information is stored on plastic disks with iron oxide glued on. Double density disks can hold 250,000 K capacity information; 500,000 K disks are being developed. Programs may have to be modified to use in your computer, even when designed for that system. It would be wise to have a program demonstrated before buying, and even to check out the program you are interested in before buying a computer. You may also want to learn to write your own programs.

Mr. Shaldenbrand demonstrated a program called "Family" which was roughly equivalent to family sheets, listing parents, grandparents and children, and a five-generation lineage chart. There is much information however that does not fit into that program, and the numbering does not correspond to a genealogical numbering system.

Word processing is a good use of the computer. If you write a book on the computer and you get new information, you can call the file up from the diskette, insert new information into the diskette, or make changes, and then print a new page. He put up on the word processor screen some of the first pages of his book showing the capability for rewriting sentences, rearranging the length of line, etc. It can search the text for a name, and can create an index with page numbers for your book. It even has a wild card capability to use in searching census (which is already entered into the system) for surnames frequently misspelled.

With a modem you can access by telephone various data banks, and your computer can talk with similar computers to search whatever is available electronically, such as weather and stock market reports. At this time little genealogical data is available. In the future such materials might be accessible, such as from Salt Lake City, but safeguarding such material is a problem.

In answer to a question, he said that computer software companies won't give you your money back if you find that you can't use a program, since they are too easy to copy. It is wise to have a program demonstrated to be sure it is what you want. It is also difficult to write a program for someone else. It might be well to learn to write your own programs.

He cautioned using care in selecting computer to be sure it will do what you want, and that modifications and additions to the system can be made. Be sure that service is convenient. Different computer centers handle different brands, and parts and programs are mostly not interchangeable.

Judge Samuel Dexter was the subject of Frank Wilhelme's talk to GSWC on February 27. Wilhelme, a graduate of Eastern Michigan University, became interested in the life of Judge Dexter while he was teaching Michigan history in the Dexter schools.

Samuel W. Dexter was born in 1792 in Boston, Massachusetts, where his father was a prominent politician and secretary of war under President Adams, and he earned a law degree at Harvard. He came to Michigan in 1824, purchasing large tracts of land in the state. Several times he was accused of bribing county officials so they would locate county seats on his land. He bought 1800 acres of land in Washtenaw County, founding the village of Dexter in 1824, and promoting unsuccessfully the building of a canal through Michigan just above Dexter and on west.

Politically he was a conservative Whig, and helped to form a third, antimasonic , party against Andrew Jackson, a mason. The newspaper Western Immigrant was owned for a time by John Allen and Judge Dexter. In his later life he was in poor health, and died in 1863.

In the discussion that followed it was brought out that his home, Gordon Hall, was thought to be a station on the underground railroad.

Burton Historical Collection was the principal resource for Wilhelme's research, but he found letters scattered in other places.

Reviews by Betty Brandt

Harlan Hatcher Graduate Library (HHGL), U. of M., Ann Arbor

In the HHGL microform room may be obtained the reels to the Michigan portion of the microfilm series "County Histories of the Old Northwest". This film version is handy because county histories from a variety of sources were filmed and whenever there was an index that too was filmed. Many of these indexes, of course, are in manuscript form and cannot be found in every library. So it may be that you can find on this film an index to a county history that previously you had consulted without benefit of index. A paperbound index to these histories, available through the desk, will list the reel number you want. You may then ask for the proper reel at the desk. No identification is necessary. B. Snow.

The staff of the HHGL microform room has been indexing Ann Arbor newspapers beginning with September 1976. Included is local news from the Ann Arbor News, the Ann Arbor Observer, the University Record, and the Michigan Daily. Obituaries are included. There is a lag of about three months before the fische appears in the room. Ask at the desk for this. Subscribers to this microfische include the Ann Arbor News, the Ann Arbor Public Library and the State Library. Here the fische is probably found in the periodical room.

WHO WERE THE CONGDONS OF CHELSEA, MICHIGAN?

By Ralph W. Muncy

The Congdons of Sylvan Township, Washtenaw County, Michigan came to Michigan from Chelsea Landing- now Norwich- Connecticut in 1832. Chelsea Landing was the head of tidewaters on the Thames River which empties into Long Island Sound below New London. Elisha and James Congdon bought land on which the Village of Chelsea now stands, in 1834. They also purchased land for their brother, David, who intended to come to Michigan. David remained in Connecticut and Elisha sold his land for him a few years later. Other members of the Congdon family followed Elisha and James to Michigan.

Two errors, one in a County history and one in the records of the Congdon family, illustrate the care which is required in compiling any records. I once learned of the response of the author of a widely used text on American History to a complaint that the author had quoted a well-known person as having stated the exact opposite to what that person had said. The author responded that "there must be a special place reserved in hell for authors who commit such errors." He added that no author knew enough to avoid having to rely on others for information and that much of the information in the text was not his own. He, then, made the astonishing comment that his publisher required him to revise the text every two years. His method of revision was that "I try to change one word in every paragraph"!

Chapman's History of Washtenaw County stated that the Congdons had named Chelsea, Michigan after their former place of residence in Massachusetts. One wonders where the interviewers for Chapman obtained the information since members of the family who had lived at Chelsea Landing were residing in Chelsea, Michigan at the time that Chapman gathered the information.

The other error had to do with the ancestry of Abigail Miner who married Elisha Congdon II. They were the parents of the Congdons of Chelsea, Michigan. Several family records and a record by a Connecticut genealogist stated that Abigail was a fifth generation descendant of Thomas Miner of Stonington, Connecticut. Research proved that relationship to have been incorrect. A brief letter by a granddaughter of Abigail Miner provided the only clue by which to determine her ancestry. That letter stated that a brother of Abigail, Thomas, had been killed in the battle for Fort Griswold near New London in 1781; that the Miners lived about twelve miles from New London; and that her father, no given name provided, had served five years in the Revolution. That meager information enabled this author with the help of others to determine that Abigail was a great granddaughter of William Maynard who came to New London, Connecticut from Devonshire in England. The error had, unfortunately crept into a few copies of "The Congdons of Chelsea, Michigan" which had reached several libraries. The author is preparing a revision which will contain additional descendants of the Congdons about whom he has learned since the first printing.

Two episodes in the search for the ancestry of Abigail Miner will serve to remind family historians of the need to be diligent. A Connecticut searcher had exhausted the contents of a box at the State Library which contained various Miner records. He was about to return the contents to the box when he noticed a crumpled up envelope at the bottom of the box. That envelope, probably overlooked by others, contained the information which, eventually, resolved the identity of Abigail Miner.

A history of New London, Connecticut revealed that William Maynard had a brother, George, at Fordingbridge (Hampshire) England. Inquiries of the Vicar of the Parish church at Fordingbridge brought a negative response- namely that he found nothing relative to a George Maynard. The author of this record subsequently visited Fordingbridge. A new Vicar had come to Fordingbridge. He produced indexes of births, marriages and deaths which the previous Vicar seems not to have known about. Among the last items to be discovered was an entry of the burial at Fordingbridge in 1719 of George Maynard of Alderholt in Devonshire, eight miles from Fordingbridge. There was no Parish Church in Alderholt at the time.

The ancestry of the Congdons who came to Michigan appears to begin with John who settled in Charles River County, Virginia in 1650. There is no record that John's wife was living. There were three brothers, David, John and Benjamin. Benjamin migrated to Kingston, Rhode Island. He married Elizabeth Albro. Their son, John, moved to New London, Connecticut. John, 1676-1743, married Mary Smith. Their son John, 1705-c.1759, married Mehitable Gardner. Their son Elisha I, 1740-1761, married Nancy Ann Perkins. They were the parents of Elisha II. Elisha II, 1760-1812, married Abigail Miner (Minard, Maynard), 1768-1858. They were the parents of the Congdons who migrated to Sylvan Township.

Many New England families moved into New York State with several stops there before going on to Michigan. The Congdons left no such roots along the way. The Congdon children worked in textile mills along with their mother Abigail after the death of their father in 1812 in a tragic accident. Where did Elisha II and his brother James accumulate sufficient finances to thus make the move to Michigan and to purchase substantial acreages both for themselves and a brother, David?

The children of Elisha II and Abigail were:

1. Diana, 1793-1841. She married John Case. They remained in Connecticut.
2. Abby, 1796-1886. She married twice, one to William Hancock and two to ______Moseley. They remained in Connecticut.
3. Fannie, 1798-1878. She married Erastus Whaley. They migrated to Chelsea, MI.
4. Elisha III, 1799-1867. His first marriage was to Mary Ann Sterry, a daughter of Consider Sterry and Mary Norman Beebe. They had three children: Elisha IV, Mary and Thomas. Nothing is known of Mary. Elisha IV and Thomas moved to Michigan with their father and his second wife, Elouiza Standish. The second wife of Elisha III, Elouiza Standish was a daughter of Mary Ann Sterry's sister Sarah who married Thomas Standish. Sarah was a daughter of Consider Sterry by his first wife, Sabra Park. Elisha had several children by Elouiza. He married Mrs. Emily Stowe after the death of Elouiza. Elisha's children found her to be a caring and adoring mother.

Elisha was a delegate to the "Frost Bitten Convention" which was held in Ann Arbor in December 1836. The proceedings of that convention resulted in Michigan's admission as a state in February, 1837. Elisha also served in the Michigan legislature. He was a merchant and had property and business interests in Ann Arbor.

Thomas Congdon, son of Elisha II and gr. Grandfather of Ralph Muncy was a tradesman as well as a farmer and school teacher. He carted merchandise by team and wagon from Monroe through Tecumseh and Manchester to Chelsea. There were occasional trips to Stockbridge and as far as St. Johns in Clinton County. Thomas married Harriet Harris, daughter of Asahel S. Harris and Nancy M. Smith who settled in Lima Township. Asahel owned and operated a hotel in Chelsea prior to his death in the 1850s.

The remaining four children of Elisha II and Abigail were:

5. David, 1802-1876. David was married twice, first to Abby Winchester, second to Mary C. Stebbins. They remained in Connecticut.
6. James M., 1805-1888. James was married twice, first to Laura Miner and second to Mrs. Sarah Elizabeth Lincoln Maine. Nothing is known as to whether Laura Miner may have been of the Thomas Miner family of Stonington, Connecticut or, possibly, of the Maynard family. It is known that David Minard, grandfather of Abigail Miner Congdon had seven children. At this time, the names of but two, Thomas and Abigail have been learned. It is hoped that some living descendant of James and Laura Miner Congdon may have this information and will pass it along to the author of this article.

James Congdon was also a farmer and a merchant. He, also, served in the Michigan legislature.

7. Daniel, birth and death dates are not known. Daniel married Eliza Barstow, an adoptee whose blood surname may have been Stoddar. Daniel is known to have resided in Pittsburg, PA and in Chicago, IL. Arthur Burke, whose pencilled notes about the Congdons are in the possession of this author stated that Daniel was buried in Paw Paw, Michigan. Other searchers may wish to pursue this lead.

8. Charles, 1810-1883, came to Chelsea in 1856. He married Harriet Marie Manning. It was a daughter of theirs who had known her grandmother, Abigail, who wrote the letter which lead to the correct ancestry of Abigail Miner. Charles engaged in trade. Several of his descendants followed the occupation. A great-grandson, Eugene Congdon, is currently the proprietor of a hardware store in Ypsilanti.

Congdon children and descendants married into other surnames born by other settlers in Sylvan Township and vicinity. They are to be found in large numbers in Michigan and throughout the United States by a host of surnames other than Congdon.

One home-site of the Congdons remains in the heart of Chelsea which stands as a tradition to the first settlers of Sylvan Township, a tradition of interests in education and history. That residence is now the McKune Memorial Library. The structure was the third residence which was built by Elisha Congdon II. It became a hotel under the ownership of a McKune family. It bears the McKune name as a library.

THE RED SCHOOL CENTENNIAL REUNION

On 17 June, 1934, about 2,000 people attended the 100th anniversary party celebrating the founding the the Red School in District No. 7, Sylvan Township. The event attracted guests from Michigan, Ohio, Pennsylvania, California and Germany..

Opening with a prayer by Rev. Oscar Laubengayer of Detroit, the program commenced with an address by Monica Merkel.Remarks were made by Miss Cora L. Haas, county school commissioner and Dr. Paul F. Voelker, state superintendent of Public Instruction. Herman Frinkle read a History of the Red School. Senator Royal S. Copeland of New York, one-time mayor of Ann Arbor and a teacher in the school in 1885 called the roll of his former pupils, to which the following responded: George Bohnet and Polly Bohnet, Lansing; Carrie Bollinger Courtright, Jackson; Maude Wortley Steinbach,Flint; Bertha Congdon West, Webberville; Bessie Faulkner Morris, Ypsilanti; Jennie Faulkner Webb, North Lake; Lizzie Oesterle,Chelsea; Allen Rockwell, Grand Rapids; Carrie Rockwell Maloney, Detroit; Millie Rockwell, Detroit; Kate Updike Soper, Pinckney; Thomas Vail, J. Edward Weber, George Hinderer, Chelsea.

A poem entitled "The Red School", by N.W.Newkirk of Ann Arbor is also printed in this lengthy report from The Chelsea Standard, 21 June 1934.

THE ROHRABACHER FAMILY

By Mrs. Albert Rohrabacher

The first ancestor of the Rohrabachers who came to Salem, Michigan was Johannes Rohrbach who came from the Palatinate of Germany to New York state in 1710. His son was Jury Rohrbach and his grandson was Christian Roraback. Christian worked at the Townsend forge in Orange County and helped make the iron chain which was stretched across the Hudson River during the Revolutionary War. Among his fourteen children was Conrad Rorabeck born 1763. He worked at Union Forge at Ancram, Dutchess County, New York. Of his three sons, the oldest, Christian, moved to Connecticut. The other two, John C. and Frederick came to Michigan.

Frederick Rohrabacher, born 1799, married Rachel Fretts in 1827 and settled first at Virgil, Cortland County, New York and then in 1841 came to South Lyon, Michigan. In 1860 he moved to Byron, Shiawassee County, Michigan. Of his ten children only the oldest, John Levi Rohrabacher (married Sarah Finkle) remained in South Lyon. Frederick died 1869 and is buried in the Walker cemetery next to Salem, Michigan. Rachel died 1876 in South Lyon and is buried in Howell.

His older brother, John Conrad Rorabacher, born 1792, married Sarah Coon in 1815 and about 1825 he moved to Yates County, New York. In 1834 they settled in Salem, Washtenaw County, Michigan. He died 1859 and she died 1870; both are buried in the Free-Will Baptist cemetery on 8-Mile Road, Green Oak Township, Livingston County, Michigan. Of their ten children, most remained around Salem and Washtenaw County.

The oldest child, Adam Rorabacher born 1816 at Ancram, Dutchess County, New York married in 1836 in Salem to Nancy Ann Smith, daughter of William S. and Permelia Smith of Scio Township. He became a pioneer of Howell, Michigan. Of their three daughters: Sarah born 1839 married Horace Whaley; Jane born 1842 married in 1860 in Salem to her father's cousin, Peter A. Rohrabacher, the son of Frederick; Gabriella born 1846 married Nelson Sutherland and lived in Pittsfield Township. Adam married (2) Martha M. Walter in Washtenaw and had two children; married (3) Mrs. Eliza (Abel) Bennett. Adam died 1843 and is buried in Pinckney cemetery with his second and third wife. His first wife who died 1849 is buried in Howell.

Lucinda Rorabacher was born 1817 died 1905.

Betsey Rorabacher born 1820 died 1902 married Mr. Preston and lived in Hillsdale County, Michigan.

John Rorabacher born 1822 married (1) Emily J. Hollister (2) Mary Frances Burdick. He died 1879 and is buried with both wives in Free-Will Baptist cemetery. He lived in Green Oak Township; had nine children. Of these only son Arthur Lee Rorabacher married (1) Rose (2) Josephine and Walter Burdick Rorabacher remained in Washtenaw and they and their families are buried in the Worden cemetery, Salem Township.

Sarah or Sally Rorabacher born 1825 died 1916 at Saline. She married 1843 at Salem Levi C. Drake. She adopted her niece, Gabriella, the daughter of Adam Rorabacher.

Henry Milton Rorabacher born 1827 died 1902 married 1849 to Amanda B. Bennett. He farmed in Salem until 1852 when he moved to Brighton, Michigan. Of his ten children; son George married Martha Renwick and his descendants live around Plymouth, Michigan; son Charles H. married (1) May Sweet (2) Isabel (3) Mable - published

Mrs. Albert Rohrabacher 201 Byron Road, Howell, Michigan 48843 a newspaper in S. Lyon; son Delor married Lillian Burt and lived around Whitmore Lake with sons Clare and Albert.

Martin Rorabacher born 1829 died 1910 married 1853 Cordelia McCormick, both buried S. Lyon. Of his five children only son Cyrus lived in Salem, then had a farm at S. Lyon. He married Ella Herrick. Some of Martin's descendants live in Plymouth.

Polly Jane Rorabacher born 1832 died 1902 at Salem. She married 1855 to George Weymouth McCormick (called Way); descendants in Mason, Michigan.

Dr. Miles Rorabacher born 1836, first child born in Michigan died 1901 in Battle Creek. He married 1860 Julia A. Murray. He grew up in Salem Township, graduated from the Medical Department at the University of Michigan. In 1883 he moved to Battle Creek, Michigan where he founded the first sanatorium there.

Mary Rorabacher born 1843 died 1888.

AN INTRODUCTION TO SYLVAN TOWNSHIP

By Kathleen Chapman and M. L. Sias

Close your eyes and imagine an area completely covered by a forest with gently rolling hills, streams, lakes and ravines; such is the terrain of Town 2 South Range 3 East, County of Washtenaw. Its pioneers were so impressed by this special beauty it was named Sylvan when it was set off from Dexter Township in April 1834.

Cyrus Beckwith was the first patentee of federal land in Town 2 South Range 3 East. His patent was issued 24 June 1830 for the SE $\frac{1}{4}$ of Section 14 crossed by the new New Territorial Road. Beckwith in October moved from Ann Arbor with his family and hired hand, William Begole. This was within a year and after a half dozen or so families had gone further west to establish Jacksonburgh and five years after the Sam Clements settled in Town 2 South Range 4 East, Lima. Within a couple of years many other pioneer families settled in Sylvan.

The southeastern portion of Sylvan was"colonized" by emigrants from Orwell, Shoreham, and Whiting, Addison County, Vermont. The Sylvan neighborhood of the Cummings, Davis, Fenn, Lawrence, Rockwell, Spaulding, Warner, and Wines families was known as the Vermont Settlement. They began buying land in Sylvan in 1832. Several families from the vicinity of Ticonderoga, New York, right across the state line from Addison County, were also early pioneers in western Washtenaw.

Because the New Territorial Road, which opened in January 1830, was a much used route, businesses soon opened along its length. In Sylvan these were concentrated principally at Pierceville and at Sylvan Center. A plat for the latter was registered in 1836 by William S. Maynard and wife, Julia, probably the Ann Arbor entrepreneur or a relative. The Center's post office operated from 1834 to 1892 and 1893 to 1902. That area now is served by Chelsea. Elsewhere in the more northwest of the town some have Grass Lake, Jackson County addresses. The Center, in Section 21, had a mill, a brick church, other businesses, also a cemetery. Today it is a quiet, seemingly rather remotely located hamlet, but actually just minutes from I 94.

Although the location of Pierceville originally must have seemed ideal, its potential was never realized. Pierceville was at the junction of the New Territorial and another new road opened in 1831-32 to what became Manchester. A Pierceville post office ran from 2 May 1835 until 8 January 1841. After the Central Railroad began serving the town, probably late in 1841, the train stopped at what became known as Davidson's Station. Several Pierceville businesses then relocated at Davidson's and other businesses began moving into what in time became the Congdon brothers' new village of Chelsea. What was Pierceville rather quickly disappeared. Visual reminders of the Nathan Pierce family for whom Pierceville was named are their Pierce Burying Ground along Old Manchester Road and the former Pierce's tavern, on the old Pierce farmstead on the east half of Section 13, just east of M 52 on Old U. S. 12, formerly New Territorial.

Nathan Pierce was born 1790 in Cheshire, Berkshire County, Massachusetts. His family immigrated about 1795 to Manchester, Ontario County, New York. In 1832 Nathan, brother of Darius, Lima pioneer, immigrated to Sylvan. Pierceville's physician, Dr. James Stewart, was born in Williamston, Berkshire County, Massachusetts and bought at Pierceville in 1836. This doctor was also from Manchester, New York.

The family of Israel Bailey, Pierceville blacksmith, had lived at Canaan, New Hampshire on the Canadian border. Israel was the only one in his family who came to southeastern Michigan, traveling from Rushville, Yates County, New York. Both Dr. Stewart and Bailey were ancestors of Mrs. Casey (Myra) Jones of Ann Arbor.

Although we today have attempted to identify the exact location of Davidson's Station, more research is needed. There were no land records for Hugh Davidson, for whom it was named. Hugh was on the 1845 census. Possibly Hugh was William H. Davidson.[1] The Davidson stop was west of the Methodist Home, probably along what today is Cavanaugh Lake Road. Davidson's was also called Gunntown after "a man named Gunn who lived nearby." No other mention of Gunn has been found. There was no post office. It was not until 1848 that a station was actually built only to be burned that same year by incendiaries. Because it was by then more convenient locally to have a train stop at what was to become Chelsea, the station was moved to the east near what was called Kedron. In 1850 James and Elisha Congdon from Connecticut, who had been in Sylvan since 1832, platted their new town of Chelsea in the east half of Section 12 near the Sylvan-Lima town line.

The Kedron post office operated from 4 January 1849 until 19 July 1850 with Elisha Congdon as postmaster. The name of the post office was then changed to Chelsea and Congdon continued as postmaster. Kedron was located near the tracks on the northeast of what became Chelsea; name Kedron for a town in York State, Chelsea for Chelsea Landing in Connecticut.

Even though Chelsea did not have a good source of water power, the only stream being Letts Creek, in the past and today it has had relatively high commercial and industrial activity. Major industries have included Glazier Stove Works; briefly a Chelsea car; Federal Screw; Central Fibre; Hoover Steel Ball; Portland Cement; Rockwell Standard; Chelsea Products, now of Dana Corporation; Chelsea Milling, maker of Jiffy Mix products; Book Crafter, Inc.; Chelsea Standard, weekly paper; and others.

Chelsea has had good schools. The 1982 fall enrollment figure was 2268. Since consolidation of the rural schools in the 1950s, school bus routes travel far into outlying areas. There is a modern, relatively new health clinic and hospital, much appreciated locally, much, much more convenient than Ann Arbor or Jackson. Some Chelsea physicians have affiliated with Jackson hospitals, so not only have some Sylvan folks traditionally traveled to Jackson for all sorts of city oriented activities, they maybe were also born, married, or died across the county line.

In 1905 the Methodist Home opened on the west edge of the village. It has admitted people from near by and elsewhere. In 1983 the home's capacity is 260, with a total of approximately 300 residents, including those in independent living apartments.

The Chelsea Standard 12 April 1983 schedule of religious activities had information from thirty-four different groups; sixteen meet in Chelsea or Sylvan Township. Several have existed for over a century. Most of these have prepared histories.

Although Sylvan Township at the turn of this century was mainly an agricultural township, it has slowly given way to progress in other directions and is in 1983 much more diversified. The 1980 census recorded 3816 inhabitants in Chelsea village and 2128 in Sylvan Township. There are maybe a half dozen full time farmers on commercial farms. In 1950 the Chrysler Proving Grounds started construction south of where I 94 opened in 1960. Chrysler bought up all of Section 27 and 34 Sylvan, most of Sections 22, 23, 26, and 35, and portions of 21 and 28. Some buildings were moved. All existing farmsteads were razed with most residents relocating nearby. Twenty-nine former residents were guests at the 25th anniversary party held by Chrysler in 1979. The Proving Grounds employs about 588 persons. The Roman Catholic St. Louis Home for Boys is on the old

[1] On 14 September 1833 the E $\frac{1}{2}$ of NW $\frac{1}{4}$ Section 14 was purchased by William J. Davison.

Joe Peet Riggs' farm in Section 29 and the Spaulding Home for Children, an adoption agency, principal use offices, is on the Warren Spaulding farmstead on Waltrous Road in Section 19.

There were other major land use changes. In the 1930s the state began buying up farm land which became a part of the beautiful Waterloo Recreation Area taking much of Sections 4, 5, 6,7, and 9. This has slowly reverted to a more natural state. Again long established families moved. In the northwest corner near Cavanaugh, Crooked and Lehman Lakes the land was cut into small parcels for summer home sites; many of these are in 1983 year around residences. Cavanaugh Lake was once an extremely popular summer fun spot.

Although there has been ample reason for immigration into and emigration from Sylvan, descendants of several of the earliest pioneers are still to be found in the town, including the Dorr and Edson (father and son) Whitaker families. The Whitaker Centennial Farm is located in Section 20 along Old U. S. 12 in Sylvan on land taken up by their relatives who were early Sylvan settlers. Calvin Hickox bought in Section 21 in 1831 and Edmund E. Conklin purchased in Section 20 in 1835.

With energetic young people at the helm of the governing body of Sylvan there will be much progress in the future. If the pioneers could see the changes made by their descendants, they would be proud of their accomplishments and Sylvan Township and Chelsea now.

Residents of Sylvan and Chelsea will be celebrating the sesquicentennial year in 1984. Preparations are already underway.

THE VERMONT CEMETERY, SYLVAN TOWNSHIP

The Vermont Cemetery was established on land donated in 1835 by Aaron Lawrence in Section 24. The occasion was the death of Mrs. Jesse C. Smith (Mary Brown) on 24 June 1835. In 1925 a bronze tablet was placed on a stone marker and dedicated "In the memory of the Pioneers of this region who came here from Vermont in 1832..." The cemetery, now two acres, is the oldest in the township and the resting place of nearly all of the pioneers of Sylvan and their descendants.

On 11 June 1932, on the occasion of the 100th anniversary of the "Vermont Settlement" an appropriate program was carried out and a tree planted. Those in attendance on this date:

THE MARONEY FAMILY

By Paul Maroney

My first interest in my family roots started in March, 1925. I had heard many stories concerning the family but nothing that could be quoted as a fact. Truly, to some degree that holds true today.

For the most part I am not too interested in a story concerning the family unless I have some document or fact to bear as a witness of my findings. That being the case, I shall endeavor to supply a few facts about my ancestors.

From death records I am reasonably certain that my Great Grandfather was Edward Maroney and his wife was Catherine McMullen. They were from County Cork, Ireland. In southern Ireland the family is known as MORONEY while in northern Ireland the name is spelled MARONEY. To find that we are Maroney rather than Moroney is still a puzzle.

Edward and Catherine sailed from the port of Cork, bound for America late in the month of December in the year 1831. They had a large family. I have never been able to positively account for the exact number. I do know that when leaving Ireland there was one boy, John, and the girls were Margaret, Bridget, Elizabeth, Catherine, and Ellen. My Grandfather, Daniel W.Maroney, always claimed that he was born on ship on the ocean, the date of his birth being 25 May 1831.Bridget, the oldest, married Richard Barry on 12 May 1834 in Washtenaw County, Territory of Michigan. The record of their children includes Daniel Barry who served as County Drain Commissioner for a number of years.

Margaret Maroney, born in 1813, died 12 October 1892 and is buried in Mt. Olivet Cemetery, Chelsea. Here I might add that Margaret, better known as Maggie, is reported to have had six husbands. I shall not go into detail here but will be glad to pass on all of my findings regarding her to anyone that might be interested. Apparently she was quite an Irish character. Margaret's next to last husband, Richard Wall, is buried in the Mount Calvary Cemetery, Lyndon Township. A head stone marks his grave which states it was erected by M. Keelan. (Michael Keelan was Margaret's last husband.) The inscription at the bottom reads, "Remember friends as you pass by, As you are now, so once was I. As I am now, soon you will be, Prepare for death and follow me."

As for Catherine Maroney, I know very little except that she married Andrew Greening and to that marriage one child , a son, was born. John Greening, born 1851, died in Detroit, 2 March 1926. John was a veteran of the Civil War and is buried in Mt. Olivet Cemetery, Chelsea.

As for Ellen Maroney, I have no data other than she married Jabez Loakes. He built and they lived in a log cabin in Lodi Township until they removed to Lansing to reside with a son.

Elizabeth Maroney, better known to the family as "Aunt Betsey" and her husband lived on what was known as Old U. S. 12, about a mile and a half west of Chelsea. There in their day they operated a stage coach stop, and provided food, beverages and lodging for stage riders. "Aunt Betsey" was born in the year 1822 and died in 1881. She was the mother of Timothy, Mary, and Margarette. The husband of "Aunt Betsey" was named Cullinane.

John Maroney is another member of the family that I do not have much knowledge about. He was married to Mary Tiplady and resided on North Broadway, Ann Arbor. One son, John, served in the Civil War, Co. D., 20th Michigan Infantry.

Mr. Paul Maroney 227 E. Middle Street Chelsea, Michigan 48118

Daniel Maroney, my Grandfather, as stated was born 25 May 1831. There are a great number of things concerning his life that might be told. From the time that I, a Grandson, was a young boy I was told that upon their arrival in America, Grandfather's parents by some method travelled to the Welland Canal, from there, by unknown means, came west on Lake Erie landing near Monroe, Michigan. From that point they constructed a raft and poled their way up the Raisin River to what is now known as Sharon Hollow. From then on the story goes that the father and mother shortly contracted some ailment and both died, leaving the children parentless. The younger children that were unable to care for themselves were raised by Catholic families, except for the baby of the family, Daniel, who was eventually taken in and raised by a Protestant family.

Grandfather was a carpenter by trade and when as a young man of about 20 he bought a lot in the Village of Chelsea, now 313 Railroad Street, he built a house which now stands very much like its original form. He helped fall the trees and had them cut into rough lumber at a nearby saw mill. When it came to finishing material, I have been told that he hired a wagon and team and drove to Grand Rapids for that part of the construction of the home. Daniel W. Maroney, age 26, and Cordelia Emerick, age 23, both residents of Lima Township, were married in Dexter on 6 February 1857.

The facts and story continue- the first real meal in that dwelling in Chelsea was Thanksgiving dinner, 1857. My father, Clarence W. Maroney was born 5 June 1859. He married Carrie Vogel on 9 December, 1890. They were the parents of Elsa, born 17 December 1892 and myself, born 28 September 1894. Father died 18 August 1936; Mother died in 1941.

Other children born to Daniel and Cordelia Maroney were Ella May, born and died 1863; James Adelbert Maroney, 9 October 1861-22 July 1938; Lizzie C. Maroney, 14 October 1865-1951; Nellie C. Maroney, 12 July 1868-26 March 1948. All of the family are buried in Oak Grove Cemetery, Chelsea.

FOLLOW UP ON QUERY FROM MIRIAM ERWIN OF CALEDONIA, MINNESOTA

Miriam Erwin recently spent an afternoon in Ann Arbor with Ruth Whitaker exploring Fairview Cemetery and the northside neighborhood where Miriam's great-grandparents David and Betsy (Greene) LeSuer lived for awhile. David's father, Nathan Le Suer, is buried at Fairview. Miriam passed along an experience that illustrates just how important small items of history, and persistence can be.

When Miriam first wrote GSWC, one of the first things we did was check the Census for her and discovered that a previous researcher had misread the birthplace of Nathan LeSuer as "Germany" when it actually read "Vermont". We also noted that the Vermont/Massachusetts border was in question in early days.

Armed with this knowledge, Miriam didn't hesitate when a prospective cousin wrote back to her that HIS Nathan had never been in Vermont! This correspondent also included the information that a picture he had of his ancestor showed a gentleman with a large nose and mouth, a description which fit the photo that Miriam had of HER Nathan. Miriam sent a copy of her photo to the Massachusetts contact, and was thrilled to receive a letter by return mail that began, "Dear Cousin!". Through this relative she has been able to track her LeSuer kin back to Philip and Temperance LeSuer of Mendon, MA, 1712!

Miriam has put together books of family group and ancestor charts for her children that are beautiful, and a good idea for those of us who hesitate to write a more narrative history. You can still include pictures and anecdotes, but there is an organized framework to work with which makes the family history clear to even a casual reader. Miriam plans to place copies of this book in libraries where she thinks family members might look for information.

Following is Miriam's LeSuer line. (To use chart, find an individual's father by multiplying his/her number by two; for mother, add one to father's number.)

1. Miriam Sheldon, b 25 Nov 1909, Pine Island MN m Benjamin L. Erwin

ST. MARY'S CHURCH, CHELSEA, MICHIGAN

By Kathleen Chapman

Possibly the earliest religious services in Sylvan Township were held by the Catholics. Beginning in 1833 the home of Thomas Carroll in Section 9 was occasionally opened to the Roman Catholics who in 1844 began using their new St. Mary's Church in the northeast quarter of Section 4, east of Mill Lake, where Old St. Mary's cemetery is located. A church was built in Chelsea in 1869 and services were held there. This was razed in 1957 because the foundation had deteriorated too badly and the gym of their St. Mary's parochial school was utilized. In 1967 a new church on a new site on east Old U. S. 12 was dedicated. The earlier Catholics in Sylvan were of Irish descent; they were later joined by numerous German immigrant families.
